

Burnside House

*Dippin
Isle of Arran*

Burnside House is a typical cottage-style detached property situated in its own secluded garden at Dippin, about 2 miles south of Whiting Bay, on the Isle of Arran.

Constructed in the early years of the 20th century, Burnside House has been recently refurbished to provide comfortable accommodation for 7 people (8 including a baby), with all the amenities expected of the 21st century.

Dippin is on the main road south of Whiting Bay, not far from the beaches at Kildonan and Torrylin. Burnside House lies in an elevated position at the end of a private road and looking out towards the Ayrshire Coast and Ailsa Craig.

The house is an ideal base for exploring the island and provides easy access to the shops and restaurants of Kildonan and Whiting Bay, and Whiting Bay Golf Course (18 holes)

Look out for the telephone box on the high road before the turn-off towards Kildonan.

Although Burnside House is on the bus route, it is advisable to bring a car.

The garden is large and secluded, with a sunny patio and panoramic views across the Firth of Clyde towards Turnberry and Ailsa Craig.

There is ample private parking in the grounds of the house.

Children are welcome (a cot can be provided on request). There is a safe play area in the garden. Well-behaved dogs can be accommodated by arrangement.
